The General Services Administration (GSA) is exploring the need for new technical and managerial services to assist Federal agencies in meeting their automatic data processing (ADP) requirements, as recommended by the Federal Data Processing Reorganization Study. In an effort to identify areas where assistance may be required, we would like to discuss agency ADP problems and needs with representatives of your organization.

We would appreciate a point of contact within your agency who could assist us in this effort. The individual should be familiar with your current and future ADP operations and plans. Our discussion will be informal, focusing on your agency's ADP requirements and possible means of providing the technical or other assistance that may be required.

Please send the name of your point of contact to:

Christopher P. Bythewood, Jr.
